

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus for facilitating online transactions are between users of a web site disclosed. Preferred embodiments include a web site configured to associate customer and purchase information corresponding to a user and completing an online transaction for items to be purchased when the user clicks on an icon. The items may be posted on the site by a different user.